

FEWER ARRESTS NOW IN BIRMINGHAM UNDER PROHIBITION LAWS IF LEGISLATURE IS TO MEET EVERY 2 YRS

Birmingham, September 8.—The police inspector of Birmingham has just completed his compilation of statistics showing the police activities in Greater Birmingham for the month of August, 1914. The only event that has happened to cause the contrast in the figures for the two years is prohibition, and to that is ascribed the result noted below. The figures were printed recently comparing the months of July, 1914 and 1915. The figures are now furnished for the month of August.

Arrests for assault and battery—1915, 90; 1914, 185.

Arrests for disorderly conduct—1915, 224; 1914, 457.

Arrests for drunkenness—1915, 79; 1914, 297.

Murder—1915, 2; 1914, 5.

Montgomery, Sept. 8.—With only three dissenting votes, the Alabama senate Wednesday passed the bill submitting to the people of Alabama an amendment to the constitution providing for biennial sessions of the legislature. A full vote of the senate was cast, thirty-two senators voting for the bill. The measure was passed after debate of nearly two hours.

The bill submitting to the people a proposed constitutional amendment providing for biennial sessions of the legislature was called up in the senate Wednesday morning by Mr. Lee, the author of the measure. He said it provides for legislative sessions every two years instead of every four years. He stated that the members of the assembly will continue to be elected for four years and that the proposed amendment would not apply to the present legislature.

Mr. Lewis of Macon, declared the measure was superfluous and that there was no necessity or demand from the people for such an amendment. On the contrary, he said, the people of Alabama are wishing for the legislature to adjourn.

"When annual elections cease, tyranny begins," said Mr. Lusk in a speech supporting the bill. He declared there are many in Alabama who "would to God the legislature had not convened. He believed that the legislature should have the right to convene more than once every four years in order that the proper attention can be given to the public affairs. He believed that if the legislature had the right to convene already every two years it would have to put a stop to some of the things that happened during the last four years. He declared the people want the reins of government in their hands and not in some one else's hands.

Mr. Lusk said a great many of the present lawmakers will not come back to the legislature.

Some graves have been dug. I heard a few clods fall in last few more full today," said Mr. Lusk. He declared the epitaph on the tombstone will be "I aspired to be governor."

Unless you put the government where it belongs—in the hands of the people where it can be exercised at will—you will never have a good government," he said.

Mr. McCain spoke briefly in support of the bill, and Mr. Lewis rejoined with another speech against the measure.

Mr. Lewis said the present legislature has whittled away its time and that its proceedings have been filled with mockery, a useless consumption of time and expenditure of money.

"I say it again, that the people of Alabama distrust this legislature and do not want them to meet any oftener than possible," he said.

Mr. Kline stated that he enjoyed Mr. Lusk's address, and thought he had struck the real demand of the state. "Other states," he declared, "have leg-

An unexpected turn has developed in the case by the repudiation of the confession of Dr. Mohr's negro chauffeur. All three negroes stoutly deny that they had anything to do with the murder and that the story implicating Mrs. Mohr is false.

Mr. Dickey had been ill for some time but it was thought that he had recovered.

Legislatures meeting more than once in four years, and why should we be the grand and glorious exception?"

"I've got no steam or hot air to blow off," said Senator Weather. "I think the day has come when the people demand this question shall be referred and submitted to them for their ratification, and I think it will carry overwhelmingly."

Mr. Ellis gave his endorsement to the bill as he said the people can safely trust the legislature to meet every two years.

The bill was passed 32 to 3, a full vote of the body being polled. The three negative votes were cast by Senators Lewis, Miller and Thatch.

WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH DOOTHAN BUSINESS MEN?

Why do not Dothan business men advertise more? The Eagle carried yesterday a little over a hundred inches of advertising some of which was foreign, that is medicine or other things offered for sale by persons outside of Dothan. The same issue of the Troy Messenger published in a town with two thousand less population than Dothan, carried six hundred inches of local business except about twenty inches. And this is an every day occurrence with The Messenger, which comes out with six pages every day while The Eagle has trouble filling four. If Troy business houses didn't find that it paid them to advertise they surely wouldn't do it, and if it pays them it will surely pay Dothan firms.

BILL TO PROHIBIT CIGARETTES IS KILLED BY SENATE

Montgomery, Sept. 8.—The senate bill has killed anti cigarette legislation.

The bill providing for the prohibition of cigarettes in Alabama was called up for a vote shortly after noon Wednesday and when the results were tabulated it was found that a 16 to 16 tie existed. Under the rules of the senate the president may untie the vote. This procedure was taken and the bill was killed 17 to 16.

The anti cigarette bill was called up in the senate shortly before noon Wednesday by Senator Brown of Tusculum, the author of the measure.

Mr. Brown said the bill is equally as important as the prohibition measures. A healthy mind and a healthy body, he said, should go hand in hand.

"There is no question," he said, "that cigarettes are largely a poison." He said that numbers of large corporations have put the ban on cigarettes on account of their injurious effects. He declared the youths of the state should be protected.

Mr. Hill offered an amendment for the bill to include snuff, pipes, cigars, chewing tobacco, and smoking tobacco.

Mr. Cooper offered an amendment to the Hill amendment, that the bill shall not apply to one-legged and harelipped persons.

Mr. Hill said that it was impossible to legislate morals or habits into men. He said he would support a bill applying to minors only. He said it would be useless to put a law on the books that is not going to be enforced.

Mr. Pride also thought the bill was inadvisable.

A motion by Mr. Lee to indefinitely postpone the bill and the amendments was lost, 17 to 16.

The Cooper amendment was regarded as a joke and was promptly tabled.

Mr. Lusk moved to table the Hill amendment.

Mr. Lewis declared opposition to the bill unless it includes cigars and other smoking material, as well as cigarettes. He believed it is unfair to prohibit one and not the other.

The Hill amendment was tabled 17 to 13.

Mr. Elrod offered an amendment that any parent allowing his child to smoke cigarettes be fined $10 for the first offense and $25 for the second offense. By a vote of 15 to 14, the senate refused to table the Elrod amendment.

R. R. COMMISSION MAY REGULATE TELEPHONE RATES

Montgomery, Sept. 8.—When Mr. Cooper of Marengo, called up his bill giving the railroad commission authority to regulate the rates of telephone and telegraph companies, Mr. Davis offered an amendment striking out an amendment of Mr. Shapiro which gave cities the right to regulate charges in the cities. Mr. Shapiro's amendment was adopted several days ago.

Mr. Davis said the Shapiro amendment would destroy the intent of the bill.

Mr. Shapiro said the bill in its original form would put all authority for the regulation of telephone charges in the hands of the railroad commission and take it away from the cities which are being served by the big companies.

He referred to the operation of the Southern Bell Telephone company in Birmingham without a franchise and said the people of Birmingham have a right by referendum to repudiate any action of the city commission.

By agreement Mr. Davis' amendment striking out Mr. Shapiro's amendment was adopted and further consideration of the bill was postponed in order that the governor may send in a message on the subject.

lation has practically dried up the railroad and Wall street fountains that once gushed up so plentifully. The special interests that rob the consumer by capitalizing high tariffs are the only certain supply that remains. Wool and cotton and steel are always ready to trade cash for legislation, and by selling out the republican party to these infant industries a campaign fund can be assured.

That is why the average Republican politician is willing to stake the 1916 election on the tariff. He knows his party will probably be defeated, but he also knows that the organization will be provided with the sinews of war without which the standard elements cannot maintain their control over the machine.

FAIRNESS FROM PHILADELPHIA.

Philadelphia may not have much "brotherly love" for the South. It is often charged that she remembers the war very pungently and has not forgiven the guns of Fort Sumter, says the Memphis Commercial Appeal.

But at least she is fair in her judgment of our section, if—as is likely—the Public Ledger of that city represents general sentiment when it says editorially:

"The Georgia grand jury was unable to find basis for the indictment of any individual for the lynching of Leo Frank, nor was it to be expected that it would. And Pennsylvania, with the memory not effaced of an outrage against law and authority fully comparable to the lynching of Frank, within its own borders, unpunished through the confessed inefficiency of law as against a public sentiment prejudiced into passion, cannot pass harsh judgment. Lynch law is not distinctively a southern shame. There is more of it in the north than we like to admit at times, and its practice is not confined to roadside hangings."

This is in marked contrast to the rabid utterances of the Chicago Tribune and papers of its kind, blind to their own sectional faults but hunting ours with the microscope of prejudice.

The Philadelphia Ledger does not condone the lynching of the unfortunate pencil factory manager, but it has the fairness to say that the north, too, has its full share of such lawless executions, and to add that these offenses "go unpunished through the confessed inefficiency of the law."

This is the honest way to look at the tragedy enacted in Georgia. Nobody condones it, and there should be no "holier-than-thou" drawing aside of skirts by states whose garments are as crime-stained as any in the Union. The Public Ledger sees this, and frankly admits it.

PREPARING FOR A DRY SEASON.

Dispensary boards in South Carolina believe in preparedness. They are preparing, not for war, but for a season of drought which they expect will begin January 1, 1916, because they believe that South Carolina will decide in favor of prohibition in the election September 14, says the Savannah Morning News. The Charleston dispensary board is said to have laid in a supply of beverages valued at $250,000 and the Richland county dispensary, which serve the thirsty people of Columbia, have placed a $300,000 order, which is considered a six months' supply.

If the prohibitionists win the election and the drought begins with the new year it is likely that many South Carolinians will wish to lay in a large stock of wet goods for personal use and the dispensaries are merely preparing for that trade. Of course if the wets win the liquor won't spoil and can be sold off in the usual way. They are buying heavily because if prohibition wins they won't be permitted to buy whiskey after the day following the election. They have had a remarkably good year.

Some other businesses in the state have felt the bad effects of the war, but the liquor selling trade has been brisk. For example, the Charleston dispensary made heavier sales by more than $6,000 in August this year than in any other August since 1909. The increase as compared with August, 1914, was $13,900. That doesn't mean that thirsts have been more numerous or harder to satisfy than before on account of the probable approaching season of "dryness," but merely because the blind tigers have been more sternly repressed and the dispensaries have taken a big share of the business that formerly went to them.

TIME.

By Dr. Frank Crane.

Old Father Time knows more than anybody.

He solves more problems than all the brains in the world.

More hard knots are unlocked, more tangled questions are answered, more deadlocks are unfettered by Time than any other agency.

In the theological disputes that once raged in Christendom neither side routed the other; Time routed them both by showing that the whole subject did not matter.

After the contemporaries had had their say, Time crowned Homer, Dante, Wagner, Shakespeare, Whitman, Emerson.

Almost any judgment can be appealed, but from the decision of Time there is no appeal.

Do not force issues with your children. Learn to wait. Be patient. Time will bring things to pass that no immediate power can accomplish.

Do not create a crisis with your husband, your wife. Wait. See what Time will do.

Time has a thousand resources, abounds in unexpected expedients.

Time brings a change in point of view, in temper, in state of mind which no contention can.

When you teach, make allowance for Time. What the child cannot possibly understand now, he can grasp easily a year from now.

When you have a difficult business affair to settle, give it Time, put it away and see how it will ferment, sleep on it, give it as many days as you can. It will often settle itself.

If you would produce a story, a play, a book, or an essay, write it out, then lay it aside and let it simmer, forget it a while, and then take it out and write it over.

Time is the best critic, the shrewdest adviser, the frankest friend.

If you are positive you want to marry a certain person, let Time have his word. Nowhere is Time's advice more needed. Today we may be sure, but listen to a few tomorrows.

You are born and you will die whenever fate decides; you have nothing to do with those fatal two things; but in marriage, the third fatality, you have Time. Take it.

Do not decide your beliefs and convictions suddenly. Hang up the reasons to cure. You come to permanent ideas not only by reasoning, but quite as much by growth.

Do not hobble your whole life by the immature certainties of youth. Give yourself room to change, for you must change, if you are to develop.

MANNISH COAT, KILTS AND BOOKS, MODEST AND SENSIBLE ATTIRE FOR WOMEN, SAYS BRAZILIAN WOMAN ENGINEER IN PARIS.

Mme. Luliere

Mme. Luliere in Her "Sensible

Costume."

Paris, Sept. 8. What constitutes "modesty"? Anything or nothing, depending largely upon the location and the ideas of each particular location.

The lady from Turkey will tell you that modesty means covering the face completely. The South Sea Island beauty feels not at all immodest in her scanty attire of a one piece sea weed suit, and so on the world over.

However, in so-called civilized communities modesty is a more variable quantity.

In Paris Mme. Luliere, a French Brazilian and an expert engineer has opened a real discussion on modest clothing for women. She has attired herself in fogs that please her, but of find some other people. Still others agree with Mme. Luliere.

The costume consists of a blue serge suit, the coat cut much like a man's coat, and a skirt short enough to be flapped up into the kilts and a pair of socks, which leave nothing to the imagination concerning whether or not nature has done a good job of moulding. A soft felt hat completes the outfit.

Mme. Luliere is not a suffragist. She has completed some big engineering projects in Brazil and is now in Paris writing articles for Brazilian newspapers. She insists that her coat is perfectly modest and that there is no just criticism that can be attached to it.

Dress—
By Anna Rittenhouse.

New York—It was a broiling August day—no, not broiling, steaming is the better word—one of those days when we read "humidity 95," with a sigh of despair. Languid pedestrians, wearing as little as possible, and hugging the shade belts, moved listlessly upon their errands along the torrid zone of Fifth Avenue and Forty-second street, the women fanning and stopping to powder surreptitiously in the angles of steaming and mopping with no attempt at concealment. A taxi, piled with baggage at the patrician sort pictured in the advertisements, stopped in front of a certain bank and the fair occupant alighted. The dejected humanity on that section of the pavement was suddenly galvanized into life. Men and women for got the heat and frankly stared. Madame was tall, slender and distinguished, but that in itself is not enough to cause anyone to forget "humidity 95."

She wore brand new Parisian garments—that was enough to catch the feminine interest, but surely not particularly exciting to the perspiring male. When you, however, of what those garments consisted, you will understand the galvanic thrill which passed along the avenue in her brief transit from taxi door to bank portal.

With the thermometer at 88 degrees, humidity 95, time 12:30 p. m. and a sun blazing like a blast furnace, madame was gowning in heavy smooth-faced green cloth, the true Lincoln green of "Ivanhoe"; the coat was long and ample and fashioned like a Russian Cossack's. It was short-waisted and the swinging skirts were gathered on from a big cord. The whole was trimmed in lavish fashion with brown fur, Kolinsky, I think. A fur collar of enormous proportions reached to her ears and hid her little chin.

A great fur border sprang at the hem of the big coders of her coat. Fur cuffs, like two of the round muffs of the '50s, which they say are going to be revived this winter, encircled her slender wrists. If these muffs are really coming in again, she is prepared with two of them. High boots encased her ankles under the short green skirt, to protect them from possible chills or an extra deep snow bank. On her head was a towering creation of velvet and coque's feathers, and the little section's of face visible between this and her collar was as cool and pale as the winter moon!

SUFFICIENT COTTON

TO LAST TWO YEARS

New York, Sept. 8.—Germany has sufficient cotton for military purposes to last for two years, said M. William L. Walker of New York, who was an arrival today on the Holland-American liner Ryndam. Mr. Walker has been in Bremen for the last nine years representing an American cotton firm.

A substitute for cotton made of wood pulp cellulose has been discovered, he said, which now is being extensively used in the textile industry.

THE A-BAD STORY, MATES

Edmund Leamy in New York
Evening Sun.

A bachelor, I, and you question
me why,
And you look at me with a sneer.

And I know what you blame, Cause I don't share my name.
And like other chaps go take a chance.

But back to the plea of most miserable me,
Of course I've learned not a jot—
For the girl's that would marry
me I wouldn't marry.

And the ones that I would—
would not.

There were Mabel and May—now what could I say?

For I loved to distraction El-ano.

But she didn't care, and oh, she was fair.

And so were Belle, Mollie and Jane.

Then Nan and Babette, I will never forget.

By far they were best of the lot—

But the girls that would marry
me I wouldn't marry.

And the ones that I would—
would not.

I would take your advice, and be married in a trice.

But when it's a matter to do with my love, Guinevere in a moment that's clear.

And I'm loved by the worship of
many.

But I never please, oh be gentle
with me.

And I'm loved by the worship of
many.

But I never please, oh be gentle
with me.

And I'm loved by the worship of
many.

But I never please, oh be gentle
with me.

And I'm loved by the worship of
many.

Women and War—

Lady Hope Nelson, formerly Miss Isabel Valle, of St. Louis, who was declared by Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish and Mrs. Robert Hoe, let to be the most beautiful girl
in America, has at last won her husband's assent to go to the war as a nurse. Cables to her family say she has gone to France to take up duties in a hospital.

Lady Nelson, then Mrs. Nelson, was to have gone out early this year with Miss Nann McAdoo and Miss Catherine Britton, but her husband could not then be induced to let her go, and the illness of her father-in-law, Sir William Nelson, who has since died, aided in preventing her.
Her sister-in-law, Miss Gladys Hope Nelson, is driving a motor ambulance in France, and her husband, Sir James Hope Nelson, is in Ireland, training part of Kitchener's army.

The following extract from the lively new suffrage book by Alice Duer Miller entitled "Are Women People?" should prove of interest:

Is it true that the English government is calling on women to do work abandoned by men?

Yes, it is true.

Is not woman's place the home?

No, not when men need her services outside the home.

Will she never be told again
that her place is the home?

Oh, yes, indeed.

When?

As soon as men want their jobs
back again!

The Polish victim's relief fund,
of New York, the organizer of which is Mr. Ignace Jan Paderewski, pianist, has made the following statement in regard to the dolls sent recently to Mme. Paderewski, and which are now on exhibition in the windows of the Aeolian building:

"When a group of Polish artists, painters, sculptors and women skilled in fine needle work found themselves stranded in Paris they turned their training to making dolls. The bodies were modelled by the sculptors, the faces painted by young men, and women who had been portrait artists or illustrators, and the costumes of their native land were reproduced with skill and exact-ness by young girls whose early training had made them familiar with every phase of peasant
dress.

"Mme. Paderewski, whose interest in the people of her country is as broad as that of her husband encouraged the workers while in Paris on her way to America. The contribution contains thirty-one dolls typical of the various provinces of Poland. Childhood, youth and maturity are represented in the collection. Halka and Jan have been selected as particularly pleasing children, but others are unique in costume and will tell their silent story to those who give them a place in their homes.

"The dolls will be exhibited at Bar Harbor, Newport and later in the Berkshires. They are only foreign dolls now being imported into the United States, and it is the plan of Mr. Edward B. Lyman, manager of the Polish victim's relief fund, to enlarge the capacity of the premier Polish Artists Mutual Help society by assisting other deserving and talented artists to obtain permission to leave Poland and to join the colony in Paris. Orders for the dolls have been coming for the collectors and museums all over the United States, and those who are fortunate enough to obtain one of the original shipment will have dolls with historical as well as intrinsic value. The dolls are copyrighted and heavily insured.

As the Styles Go—

By Betty Brown.

Fashion spells the new trimmings with a capital B: braids, buttons, beads—and braids are the most popular of the three.
The new serged tailored suits are invariably in black, and even the little turbans are piped or banded with shiny black braid.

Skirts will lose none of their fullness this fall, but they'll be plaited so that they'll cling to the figure.

The redingote is the accepted
style in the three piece costume.
It's popularity may be its ruin,
for already everybody is wearing redingotes.

The muskmelon is the model for many of the new muffs and Now, you listen to this nation-wide smoke news, men, because we tell always a bushy little tail dancing from the new muff, for "an-

Fashion comes in subdued colors this fall. Battleship gray, navy blue and dark green are prominent shades just now. And direct from Paris comes word that Scotch plaid, not overloud
in color, and neutral tinted cheeks will be favored by smart
women.

The butterfly girdle, made of pussy willow in faded rose shades, is one of the season's pretty novelties. White bead eyes give the butterfly that perches at the back of milady's waistline, a very realistic appearance.

Gabardine, which has been a trifle overworked, looms up in new guise this fall, and it's labelled broadcloth gabardine. There is also a new whip cord gabardine that promises to be popular.

REPLIES TO TAFT.

Manila, Sept. 8.—Francis Bur-

reply to criticism of the adminis-

tance to Mr. Taft's statements.
Governor Harrison declared that when Mr. Taft was in the Philip-among those advocating Filipino independence, but was "the leader of the retentionists," when in
